

ABSTRACT

[0060] Methods and systems for providing foreign exchange price information and entering into foreign exchange transactions are disclosed. In certain embodiments, a price provider receives foreign exchange rates and, based thereon, provides clients with foreign exchange indicative rates. Such indicative rates are preferably in the form of a streaming price feed. Clients, in turn, may use the indicative rates to revalue existing positions or translate offers in multiple currencies. Additionally, the client can enter into trades with the price provider based on the indicative rates or deal rates generated by the price provider.